ERHS Orchestra Wins Acclaim on Vienna Trip

by Toni Bram

On Monday, July 19, happy confusion reigned as parents, family, and friends of Eleanor Roosevelt High School Symphony Orchestra's young musicians waited outside the U.S. Customs room for the prize-winning group to be congratulated on their return from Vienna, Austria. Also waiting were the State of Maryland's Lt. Governor, Sam Bogley, and various members of the press and TV Channel 7.

At last the doors on the lower level of the B.W.I. Airport burst open and there was a roaring cheer for the elated and exhausted group, led by Dorothy Pickard, orchestra director. The Eleanor Roosevelt High School Symphony Orchestra placed second among 54 competitors from 15 countries. The U.S. swept all the top positions, with first and third places going to California and Texas schools respectively.

Greenbelters included in the Roosevelt group were Edie Belitza, Tim Bram, Brian Choper, Seth Churchill, (whose parents attended as chaperons), Eric Hirschmann (whose father was also a chaperon), Laura Millman (concert mistress), Mark Neupert, Jared Ross, Amir Sela, Rachel Turkiewicz and Jason Warner.

The orchestra, which left for Vienna on July 7, flew first to Frankfurt, Germany, where they were met by a tour guide and bused through Wolzburg to Rothenburg. The group of 77 musicians, director and chaperons arrived in Vienna on July 9, after touring the German and Austrian countryside.

Although the orchestra placed second among high schools invited to the Vienna International Youth and Music Festival, from all reports they were the most applauded and popular, receiving no fewer than three standing ovations after several concerts. One such concert was at Vienna's famous Sofiensaal, which the young people compared to the Kennedy Center. This concert was broadcast on radio in Vienna and the Viennese audience gave a standing ovation for Roosevelt's rendition of Dvorak's "New World Symphony." Other well-received works were Leonard Bernstein's "Candide" and Johann Strauss' "Thunder and Lightning Polka," performed as an encore, to the great delight of the Viennese.

Twenty-five Roosevelt musicians were also honored by being chosen as part of a composite international orchestra. Greenbelters Rachel Turkiewicz, Laura Millman, Jason Warner and Tim Bram were among those chosen.

On the evening of the 17th the Roosevelt Orchestra, enroute to Frankfurt, performed in Olympiapark, in Munich. When the Munich audience demanded an encore, the stadium was nearly dark, but Pickard directed the group with a small flashlight. Again they played the Dvorak work — this time from memory, as encore and finale of the trip.

How It All Began

Over a year ago, the Lord Mayor of Vienna invited the Eleanor Roosevelt Symphony Orchestra to the Youth and Music Festival of summer '82. Those students who were to graduate were invited to return in order to attend the festival and those who did returned this past May to practice with the rest of the group.

Then began a year of frenzied fund raising by the students and parents. Many local groups contributed to the $135,000 realized, which made the "once in a lifetime" trip possible for the students. The orchestra trip was endorsed by the the Greenbelt City Council and the group was invited to play for the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival in September 1981.

Side trips included Vienna at night, a celebration at Wienerwald, an impromptu swim in an Austrian lake while touring, a composers tour, Salzburg, Wachau Valley, and others.

Although the students adjusted well to Vienna, they returned asking for more beef, ice, and no parsley soup.

Gala Return

Upon the celebrated return, Pickard was presented with a tape recorder from the students and a director's chair and flowers from parents and friends. Despite fatigue from the long air trip from Frankfurt, Pickard, chaperons and students were most gracious recipients of pressing congratulations and cheers from the crowd.

Lt. Gov. Sam Bogley read a congratulatory letter from Governor Harry Hughes to the assembled group in the airport lobby, an appropriate greeting for a group so recently welcomed by the Lord Mayor of Vienna. This was at a reception at the fabulous and vast Wiener Rathaus, Vienna's opulent city hall. They were among fifteen hundred student musicians from around the world.

Member Requests, Problems Again Occupy GHI Board at Special Meeting

by Barbara Likowski

Problems with gutter downspouts and member problems and requests for exemptions were tackled by the Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) Board of Directors in a special two-hour meeting, July 8. At 10 p.m. the board met in executive session with their attorney, Pat Clancy, to discuss rehab contracts and other matters. President Jim Smith presided, directors Frank Gervasi and Wayne Williams were absent.

During recent heavy rains several minor problems were discovered with downspouts, including water overflow and blockage of gutters. These were traced to an error in original specifications for spouting including a too great drop or slope of the gutter and too great a distance in spacing downspouts. CDC Architects has recommended a change or slightly modified drop of the gutter from 1 inch and 8 feet as is now in effect to ½ inch and 8 feet. Spouts should be spaced no further than 40 feet. (A few are now spaced as far as 50 or 55 feet.)

To clarify the problem for the board, Gary Morningstar, chief of Administrative Services, sketched a replica of the problem on the blackboard.

General Manager Tim Mitter informed the board that the proposed change had been tested on four buildings and it seemed to resolve the problem. Since it will be necessary to go back and correct the problem on frame buildings that have already gotten new gutters and downspouts, the total cost will be approximately $13,000 ($20 per unit).

The directors were loath to spend this amount of money until they were convinced that this would indeed answer the problem.

Director John Lewis showed the board a gutter screen with small holes that he said had been removed from the gutter of a neighbor who had had damage from water running into his air conditioner at night, going into the wall and wetting the insulation. Lewis pointed out that the small holes tended to clog more easily and since the water could not go through the clogged holes, it was overflowing and backing up. He showed another type screen which had enough of a barrier to keep out large objects such as twigs but had ample space through which water could flow. This latter type screen is now being used, Morningstar confirmed. No one seemed to know where the first type screen had come from. Lewis advised the board to change the strainers first and see if that alleviated the problem. Director Janet Cantwell agreed.

Member Denise Dombrowski who is an architect, suggested that since Lewis was knowledgeable of the subject he should work with management to see if it were possible to do the job for less than $13,000. In some cases, Dombrowski pointed out, the gutters have been cleaned and the See GHI BOARD, page 8, col. 1

Staff, Friends Bid Farewell To Bernice and Sid Kastner

by Sandra Barnes

Sid and Bernice Kastner, residents of Greenbelt for 23 years, leave this community next month for their new home in Vancouver, British Columbia. A party in their honor was held July 18 by many of their friends to say good-bye and wish them well.

The Kastners have long been active in Greenbelt. Living in the community just three weeks, Bernice was enlisted into service with the News Review. Protesting that she didn't write, she was told, "That's okay. There are a lot of other jobs you can do." She then became a regular on the Wednesday night make-up crew. As it turned out, Sid was the writer. Soon he was covering Greenbelt Homes, Inc. business meetings.

A quiet couple, Sid and Bernice have nevertheless left their mark. They raised three children, Judy, Ruth and Joel, first living in GHI and later buying a house on Northway.

Sid retires from the Solar Physics Branch at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center next month, while Bernice ends her mathematics teaching career with Montgomery College. They both hope to find employment in their respective fields in Canada. Their daughter and son-in-law, Judy and Tom Skillman, have already gone west, to the Olympic Peninsula, Washington.

The News Review staff especially regret the loss of their colleagues who have given so much to the paper over the years, including sage advice, editorial writing, make-up and proof-reading and business tasks. Both looked on their service to the paper as giving something back to the community which had given so much to them. Sid's straightforward approach to reporting could always be relied on as factual without embellishments.

The whole Kastner family has become known for their musical talent, their scientific bent, and their quest for learning. Their daughter Ruth and her husband, Chuck Hagelgans, remain in Greenbelt, while son Joel pursues his musical career, living in nearby Silver Spring.

The Kastners were presented with a resolution highlighting their Greenbelt activities and a cake, designed by Dottie Varda, in the style of a make-up page from the News Review. As they leave for Canada, they take with them the warmth and affection of a host of Greenbelt friends.

International Teenagers Need Homes For Year

Youth for Understanding, international non-profit, high school exchange program, is currently looking for families to host high school students for the coming school year.

The exchange students arrive in August and come to live as real family members, participating in the chores and the responsibilities as well as the privileges of the family. The student provides his own spending money and clothing expenses and the family provides room and board, and more important, the guidance and understanding they give to children of their own. The program also arranges for American teenagers to have a family living experience in the country of their choice. Anyone interested in these learning experiences at home or abroad should contact the local representatives Liz and Larry Lyons in Temple Hills at 894-5270.

Peace Committee Refused Right to Parade Labor Day

The Greenbelt Peace Committee will meet Wednesday, July 28, in the Conference Room of the Greenbelt Library at 7 p.m. to discuss Peace Committee activities during the Labor Day Festival. A proposal for the Peace Committee to participate in the parade was rejected by the Labor Day Parade Committee.

The Peace Committee theme for the Labor Day Festival is peace and jobs. This is a response to what the Committee senses is a community concern for unemployment, reduced services, threat of war and its consequences, and the impact of military spending on the community and citizens.

Individuals and groups interested in developing ideas to demonstrate this theme at the Festival are invited to the meeting July 28. For more information please call Becky Williams, 474-6265.

Summer Sounds

Sunday, July 25, 7 p.m. The New Century Singers will be performing at the Greenbelt Lake Park. Bring a chair or blanket and enjoy.

Bravo!

Congratulations to the members of the Eleanor Roosevelt High School symphony orchestra! They had to be good, or they would never have been invited to compete in the prestigious International Youth and Music Festival. In this eleventh year of the event, held in Vienna, Austria, 53 other groups from 15 different countries also performed. Yet in a competition as tough as this, the local group did themselves proud. Under the leadership of their dedicated director, Dorothy Pickard, they took second place! And as if that were not enough, they went on to enthrall an audience at a special concert held in the Munich Olympic Stadium.

Such an achievement takes time, of course. The orchestra's summer weekday practice sessions were two and a half hours, on Saturdays five. But another kind of time was also involved — and that took years. This group of students entered elementary school at a propitious moment for musicians — when the school program had been expanded for the first time to offer instrumental music. That early start has made all the difference, as the ERHS orchestra's splendid achievement demonstrates.

In this light, the recent decision of the Prince Georges school administration to eliminate the elementary school instrumental music program will have a depressing effect — not this year, not the next. But it may have made impossible the opportunity for today's fourth graders, when they shall reach their senior high school years, to share in an experience so rewarding for the participants and so enriching for the community they represent. That loss cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

A Call for Harmony

Remember when you couldn't hang your clothes on the line on Sunday because it looked unsightly? And all the residential lots were made uniform by the green borders of privet hedge? How the city looked — harmony in its outward aspect — was an important value in those early days.

And still ought to be. In fact, precisely to recognize Greenbelt's pioneer role as a community where planning was foremost, it was selected for a place on the national register of historic places. That recognition even held up GHI's rehabilitation efforts, it will be remembered, so that new siding in harmony with the city's early image could be selected. and approved.

In the light of this tradition, a recent decision of the GHI board seems both cavalier and destructive. Far from planning ahead, a board majority approved retroactively a member's construction of a shed whose dimensions in both height and volume grossly violated the corporation's own policy. In so doing, the board can only have undermined its authority to establish and enforce guidelines on any matter. It would appear that a member could erect a structure to suit any eccentric taste. That seems to be the message of the board decision.

Unfortunately this is not a matter internal only to GHI. The visual impact of the city's historic section, which has become more attractive as the rehabilitation progresses, affects everyone who lives here. A proliferation of unsightly and larger and larger sheds cuts into the very green space from which the city takes its name, and continuing violations of policy that ought to apply equally to all members of the cooperative corrupt the planning philosophy which is the city's major claim to fame.

The city held out for a high quality of development of the surrounding land. Now as million-dollar enterprises grow around us, it would be the ultimate irony if by our own acts we destroyed the harmony of the core itself.

"Big Kids Soccer"

by Sue Cornelius

Efforts are now underway to form a special soccer team, limited to players 19 or over. This is a private organization, not affiliated with the Greenbelt Boys & Girls Club.

The main purpose is for those coaches, refs, parents of younger soccer players and anyone else interested in soccer, to get their chance to kick the ball around, and know the excitement and thrills that are special to soccer.

One must be 19 or over, and have some time to share with other soccer fanatics. It will be fun, and a chance to get some exercise, as well as get to know more soccer people in Greenbelt.

If interested, please call Sue Cornelius (345-6081) or Jorge Bianchi (937-4370, 937-0388) for more information.

THREE CHEERS!

We are used to cheering for baseball and football teams. But a high school symphony orchestra. Nevertheless, many people throughout the metropolitan area have cheered for the Eleanor Roosevelt High School orchestra. News of their performances in Vienna, Austria last week, as they competed in the 11th Annual International Youth and Music Festival was followed closely by the media and the community.

Those who supported countless citrus fruit sales and flea markets throughout the year knew the energy and enthusiasm of these high school students — an elite corps of young people, many drawn to Roosevelt's science and technology program from all parts of Prince Georges County as well as Greenbelt. They knew also of the tremendous dedication of their director, Dorothy Pickard. The orchestra's goal to become the number one youth orchestra in the world became a dream many of us in the community shared.

On Friday, we found out that they placed second. But our dream was only momentarily tarnished. From all accounts, their performances were superb successes. They were the only orchestra to receive a standing ovation and to play an encore.

They were selected to perform a special concert for Vienna residents, broadcast on radio from the Sofiensaal, equivalent to the Kennedy Center. Twenty-five musicians were selected to perform in an international orchestra composed of the festival's best. We don't know the reasons they were judged second. But we do know that they return to Greenbelt to the acclaim of their parents, friends, school and community, their success reflected in the pride we feel as we welcome them home. They worked hard. They gave their best. And they are number one to all of us.

The achievements of this high school orchestra also point out how much their success is attributed to the outstanding musical program in Prince Georges County School System. Beginning in the fourth grade, instrumental music lessons have been available to all students. Many received their first instructions, opening the door to an appreciation of music as well as the development of talent and self discipline. Now that program is threatened as the school board proposes to end instrumental instruction in the elementary grades. Another bow to TRIM.

Would the Eleanor Roosevelt High School Orchestra have even been invited to Vienna, let alone achieved such artistic success, had its members begun learning to play their instruments in junior high school? I think not.

As the school board tightens the screws on county educational programs, we should earnestly entreat them to continue the elementary school instrumental program so that musical talent and appreciation can be developed at a formative age within the framework of a quality public educational program.

Let's not let these Eleanor Roosevelt High School orchestra musicians be the last to represent Prince Georges County in national and international competitions. Technical skills give us the knowledge we need to make correct decisions; the arts enrich our lives. Surely, education is a blend of both.

Open Letter to Council

Please accept my sincere and heartfelt thanks in providing the ramp type curbing for our handicapped and elderly citizens.

It is most gratifying to and for me not to witness their walking to the Center in the road because they cannot manipulate their crutches, wheelchairs and feet over the street curbs. It is a very dangerous situation as some of them may not be able to see or hear the cars. We have been very fortunate so far, that there have not been any accidents—but Heaven forbid—there is always a first time.

Though it took me a few years to convince some Council members of the need for this project, I hope that it can be continued throughout the City.

On behalf of the handicapped and elderly and myself, there are no words that can express our appreciation.

Ethel Rosenzweig

Four Lessons

I was privileged to serve on the GHI Board of Directors for eight years and City Council for the subsequent ten years. Such service would not support a claim, were I foolish enough to make it, that I "know it all." Nevertheless, it should have, and I believe it did, teach me certain "truths," or so I believe them to be, that I should like to communicate.

First, members of policymaking bodies such as the GHI Board and City Council do not take the first places in line when anything of value is assigned. They take their turn in alphabetical order, by geographical location or by whatever logical method of distribution is used. If the selection is random, their places are at the end of the line.

Second, such persons as Board and Council Members avoid asking for special treatment. Election to office does not mean that they surrender their rights and privileges as members (GHI) or citizens, but they accept or exercise them just as do all other members and citizens.

Third, policymakers by definition deal with the mass. Admittedly the efficacy of policy is judged by how it affects individuals, but the genius of good policymaking is the devising of policies that require the granting of the smallest number of exceptions. If many exceptions seem to be necessary, the policy should be changed. This assumes of course that the policymakers are wise enough to require that the burden of proof be borne by the one seeking the exception.

The fourth lesson may be the hardest to learn. At times, taxes or monthly charges may have to be raised, an action certain not to please some. At times, a site for a Parkway overpass must be chosen or the decision made to proceed to rehabilitate. At times, refusal must be the lot of a petitioner for an exception to policy. Decisions such as these cause unpopularity. Wanting to be liked is a normal trait, but when policymakers take extraordinary measures to avoid unpopularity, they do a disservice to the public they are supposed to serve.

These several truths or lessons represent "costs" that one must expect to pay if he or she seeks the privilege of serving as a policymaker. They are not onerous, but their payment is necessary to gain and to preserve the respect deserved by the electoral process, those who are selected by it and the policies they decree.

Letter to the President

Dear President Reagan:

The Executive Board of Citizens for Greenbelt, Inc., a city-wide civic organization, wishes to register a strong protest against the taking of any land from the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, an asset to our community and a good and respected neighbor.

We hope that since this world-famous facility is striving to fully utilize its share of federal lands according to its master plan, that parcels three and fifteen, targeted as "excess" or "under-utilized" will not be sold but will revert to the Research Center for its important work.

Your favorable action will be appreciated.

"Bye-Bye Birdie," Hello Greenbelt

by Arthur Donn

Greenbelt is represented in all aspects of the presentation of the musical-comedy "Bye-Bye, Birdie," to be offered at Utopia Theatre, starting Thursday, July 29. Beth Tavenello, who appeared in "Side-by-Side by Sondheim," and "Pajama Game" and had the starring role in "Wonderful Town" at Eleanor Roosevelt High School, again will play the female lead.

Beth is well known in Greenbelt. She was last year's first runner-up in the Miss Greenbelt contest. Also she sings in the choir of the Methodist church.

William "Peanut" Wood, who has theatre production experience from the Roosevelt shows "Pajama Game" and "Wonderful Town," is technical director. And Alexa Lauber helps support the show, singing in the chorus.

Greenbelt representation, good as it is, is not the only reason though, to see the show. "Bye-Bye, Birdie," a satire of the idolatry of Elvis Presley and the rock 'n' roll era, is a fine, fast-paced, comedy.

The story revolves around a crooning teen idol who has been drafted. Also in it are the idol's agent, the agent's secretary, and the girl he plans to give one last kiss before he is inducted.

"Bye-Bye, Birdie" opened on Broadway in 1960 and ran for 607 performances. This revival at Utopia will start July 29 and run for five showings, evenings on July 29, 30 and 31 and both a matinee and evening performance Sunday, August 1.

The show is directed by John Mancuso and choreographed by Vicki Snead and Renee Bryan, all veterans of the Music Theater Group and past musical comedy productions at Eleanor Roosevelt High School.

Festival Notes

Miss Greenbelt

Greenbelt girls who are 15-19 years old are eligible to participate in one of Greenbelt's most popular events—the Miss Greenbelt Pageant. Participants have the chance to win numerous valuable prizes while enjoying a summer and Labor Day weekend they will never forget. All girls interested in participating should attend an informational meeting on Monday, July 26 at 7:30 p.m. in the Library conference room. For more information call the Miss Greenbelt Pageant Chairperson Jean Cook (345-2597).

Outstanding Citizen

Who will succeed Greenbelters Al Cousin, Al and Elaine Skolnik, Henry Fisher, Reverend Kenneth Buker, Leo Gerton, Jim Cassels, Ralph Noble, Clara Brandt, and William Hoff as the recipient of Greenbelt's annual Outstanding Citizen Award? Nominations are needed for this year's award, sponsored by the Labor Day Festival Committee. Individuals or groups may nominate any person who has provided service benefiting the Greenbelt community, and who also meets the following criteria:

1. Must be a Greenbelt resident.
2. Current elected officials and candidates for political office may not be considered.
3. A city employee may not be nominated for services for which he/she is salaried.

Nominations should be submitted on special forms available at Community Savings (Twin Pines) or the Springhill Lake Community House. All forms should be mailed to Linda Shevitz 9004 Breezewood Terrace, Greenbelt, by August 13. For further information call 345-9358.

GHI NOTES

The regular rehab information meeting will be held from 5-6:30 p.m. on July 26 in the GHI Board Room. All members who will experience any rehab work in the next week are encouraged to attend. Other meetings scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Board Room include a Finance Committee meeting on July 27 and a GDC Board of Directors meeting on July 29, followed by a special GHI Board of Directors meeting.

GHI is gearing up for Greenbelt's annual Labor Day Festival. This year the GHI booth will feature sales of the "Life in Greenbelt" calendar developed from GHI's recent photography contest. The popular hidden treasure game will be offered again. To make this game a success, GHI is seeking donations of "real or wacky" prizes. Call Dennis Lewis (474-5566) to pledge a prize.

In addition, GHI is planning to enter a float in the Labor Day Parade. Any youngster interested in marching with the GHI float should also contact Dennis Lewis.

Rehab work is continuing. Besides heat conversion and window replacement, attic and crawl space insulation has begun. By the end of the week, all thermostats which had calibration problems will be replaced at the manufacturer's expense. GHDC is notifying members of this work. Members with questions are asked to call the rehab hotline (474-6644).

Without any new staff increases, member relations has been bolstered with help from the Staff Architect's Office in the person of John Vaughn who can also provide rehab information. Call the rehab hotline (474-6644) for information and the latest rehab schedule.

REHAB INFORMATION

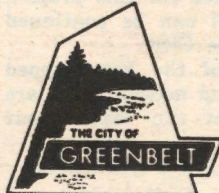

On June 10, the GHI Board approved the installation of new windows for additions of masonry units. Windows will be installed in structurally sound additions subject to GHDC approval at the member's request.

Members interested in receiving windows for additions in masonry units should follow these steps:

- Call the Rehab Hotline (474-6644) to receive a Window Request Form. The form must be returned at least two days before your windows are measured.
- Sign a work order. You will receive this after the windows are measured and the cost is determined.

screens were not put back. Smith asked that management look at the problem again and check and see if the slope is to blame and bring the matter back to the board.

Requests for Exemptions

The board considered two requests for exemption from electric baseboard heating. On March 27 director Mark Dombrowski and his wife, Denise requested that they be permitted to retain the original radiators in their home, powered by a new electric hydronic boiler. On April 8 the request was turned down by the board because it seemed to be based on aesthetic considerations. On April 12 the Dombrowskis resubmitted their request on the basis that they intended to preserve the unique historical character of their unit and intended also to restore their steel casement windows.

Director Joe Jenkins asked Mitter if the request met the four objective standards set by legal counsel: 1. Can it be implemented without disruption to the rehab contracts or contract schedule? (Mitter said yes, it could be; 2. Does it reduce apparent health or safety hazards? (no); 3. Has past action of GHI made the conversion of that unit unnecessarily costly or in some other way inequitable to the member? (no); and 4. Will granting the exemption establish an undesirable precedent? (yes). Director Margaret Hogensen reminded the others that the board always had an "equal to or better than" policy. Cantwell thought the problem should be deferred until the full board was present.

Audit Committee Chairman Katherine Keene asked the Dombrowskis what their documentation was for the historical significance of their home. Dombrowski said it was in the historic district, to begin with, (as are all GHI homes.) Keene reminded him that he had said in a previous meeting that Eleanor Roosevelt had walked into his house. "Where is that documented?" she asked. Dombrowski said that they had heard this and were looking into it. The Dombrowskis also said that their home had the original plumbing, kitchen and other features and they would like to maintain them. Keene thought that the "fate of this particular house" depended on the committee. (Ad Hoc Committee on Historic Preservation.)

Smith confirmed that part of the decision depended on the committee — if the house is original in all respects and if GHI can get contractual documents that obligate the member to keep it that way. "Only the residents of that house can determine what they are willing to contract," he said. If such a contract is signed, the house would have to be maintained as is in perpetuity by the member residing in it and thus would not set a precedent. Smith deferred the subject to the next board meeting and asked management and the Dombrowskis to work out what commitments to historic preservation are going to be made.

Liquid Electric Heat

The board also considered a request for liquid electric heat made by Martin Holly, 45-S Ridge because of respiratory health reasons. This request had also been previously turned down by the board because it was not part of the standard rehabilitation program. To Holly's fear that dust in the system might smell and increase his wife's sinus condition, the board assured him it was closed to the air and that could not happen. Dombrowski felt members should be given options for other heating systems and saw "no reason why the gentleman can't hook up his own." Keene observed that Dombrowski hadn't moved to GHI until last December. "Where were you when we did give members options?" she queried. Options had been allowed, she pointed out, but because of legal necessity to let contracts, etc. the board, on the advice of their attorney, set a deadline on when options could be had. Keene took exception to Dombrowski's statement at this stage of the game.

Holly withdrew his request and said that he did not feel that management was explaining the pros and cons of alternate systems when people need to know, resulting in confusion. He had not understood that he would have to pay for the installation himself.

Hogensen felt that members should understand that they must pay their share of the maintenance of the whole system and also pay for the entire maintenance of their own system.

Member Ben Abramowitz, whose request for exception is also being considered, felt that that policy is not fair. "If you ask a person to pay for everyone else's (maintenance) then you should pay for mine," he said. Morningstar reminded him that he couldn't have it both ways.

Deck Waiver Request

A request for waiver of procedure was made by Bob Wilhide, 59-G Ridge to build a 15'3"x9'8" deck on the garden side of his unit. The staff architect has granted approval subject to obtaining consent of his neighbors, the McCords, 59-F. The McCords will not grant approval until their drainage problems are solved. After that, they said they would not object.

McCord said that after twelve years of complaining of a drainage problem, new superintendent of maintenance, Joe Whelan has acknowledged that a problem exists. McCord said he has five inches of water in his yard and no drainage. Morningstar did not think the drainage problem would be affected by the deck since the water seemed to be coming from a direction other than from Wilhide's.

The McCords also said they had not seen Wilhide's plans. Wilhide said he felt that he did not need to show his plans to the McCords stating it was none of their business. Director Don Volk reminded Wilhide that the neighbors needed to see the plans if they were expected to sign them.

Management claimed the deck was an addition so it needed neighbor approval. Several board members thought it was not an addition and no approval was necessary. The board then moved to table the discussion until Whelan returns and they are able to obtain more facts about the drainage problem. Smith added that the board must find out what needs to be done about the drainage problem, adding that we can't promise to solve it. We will have to look at all of our drainage problems and see what can be done about them all.

Resale Inspection

Complaints about the resale inspection policy surfaced again. Member Barbara Henderson, 14A Hillside, told the board she intended to move next year and wants to prepare for it. She expressed dismay at the inspection form received by her sister who is moving now. Some of the demands for improvement she termed unrealistic. Henderson thought her sister's home was already in excellent shape though you would think it was a slum to see the form, she complained. A yard shaded by trees can't realistically be expected to be lawn, she said as an example. It was really a lovely yard, she said. Henderson pointed out that members had gotten poor inspection in the past and the incoming members had had to be responsible for corrections. She also felt GHI should be working now to correct problems such as trash in the public areas, permanent roach problems, etc.

Cantwell agreed that resale inspection has gotten to the place "where it is ridiculous." She asked the board to look at inspection procedures. Audit Committee member Debbie Hartwick informed the board that the audit committee expects to do a review on resale inspections.

Member George Ronchi complained that he had received a letter from GHI asking him to remove his trailer from a parking place in his court. Ronchi, who rents a space in the GHI trailer lot, expressed dismay at the condition of the "rutted road" leading up to the lot and the fact that old radiators piled up near the entrance made it difficult for him to make the turn into the lot. Until those conditions are corrected, he said, he could not use the lot and so he had no alternative but to park his trailer in his court. Management said the road had been gravelled about 8 months ago. It was a recurring problem. They are running out of space to store the old radiators which they hoped to be able to sell.

Jenkins felt the issue could not be settled that night. "It would be foolish to spend a lot of money on roads until rehab and the resulting heavy use of those roads is over," he stated. He hoped that management could accommodate Ronchi in some other place.

Smith reminded Ronchi that there were two different issues. Keeping the trailer lot clear for those who rent is a separate issue from parking the trailer in the member's court. Perhaps the member needs to find another place to park his trailer, Smith said. Parking in the member's court is illegal.

Rehab Mess

The board was sympathetic to a member who had come home from work that day and found a larger rehab mess than she had expected — a dent in her washer, unnecessary holes in the wall, etc. Smith referred her to management to work it out. The board will deal with it if management can't, he promised.
